

Alan James Steel

Age: 38

Height: 6' 2"

Weight: 200lbs

Eyes: Dark Blue / Black

Hair: Light Brown / Grey

Facial Features: Rounded features with a prominent chin. Slightly tilted eyes giving an aggressive gaze.

Color Scheme:

- Khaki trousers
- Dark grey shoes
- Dark brown belt
- Lightly tanned skin
- Red, Yellow and Orange blurred fire effects

Characteristics: Cool-headed aggressiveness, surprising agility given size, obsessed with literal and figurative forms of fire, skilled with Fire Dancer techniques including spinning flaming torches, experience in both office building settings and fire-dance performance venues, worked for ten years as a human resources professional specializing in employment termination (so called "Firing Manager"), has been studying and performing fire dancing for six years.

Background/Summary: Alan Steel received a Master's degree in Business Administration from Harvard University and went on to work at General Dynamics as Senior Human Resources Agent. Alan quickly showed his skill in Human Resources especially when it came to terminating an employee's employment. He became the go-to person when someone needed to be fired and gained the title "Firing Manager".

However, ten years later, he met with an ironic fate. The company was losing business and needed to have massive layoffs. As such Alan Steel, the Firing Manager, was fired. Being betrayed by the company he had worked at for so long Alan became a bit unsettled. He became obsessed with "Fire", the literal form of his previous work. He studied under a Fire Dancing Master and soon became quite adept himself. For the past six years he has been studying and performing Fire Dances using such implements as Flaming Torches and Flaming Office Memos.